STUDENT ADVISING

MAJOR QUALIFYING PROJECTS (MQP)

The MQP is WPI’s senior-year capstone project through which students gain real-world design or research experience in their major field(s). These projects can be completed on campus or abroad and are often sponsored by external agencies. The MQP is equivalent to 3 courses (nine credit hours) unless independently designed to combine the requirements of two majors, in which case it equals 4 courses (twelve credit hours).

Bryce Kaw-Uh, “Feasibility of Digitizing LEI Evaluations with an Internationalized ASSISTments”
(sponsored MQP for B.A. International Studies & B.S. Computer Science) 2016-17

Kristin Poti, “Cultural Production and the Transmission of Memory: Reversing Amnesia in the Southern Cone” 2013-14

INTERACTIVE QUALIFYING PROJECTS (IQP)

The IQP is WPI’s junior-year interdisciplinary project that connects science and technology with social issues or human needs. The IQP isn’t organized as a course or related to a major. About half of all IQPs are completed off-campus through the Global Projects Program and are sponsored by non-profit, NGO, municipal, and governmental agencies. Students complete a research methods course and a preparation course (PQP) the term prior to completing the 7-week, 9-credit-hour project, which is co-advised on site by two faculty members. The report links are available on my webpage.

7. “Electronic Recycling Center in Peñuelas, Puerto Rico: Its Viability, Sustainability, and Operation,” Desarrollo Integral del Sur, Inc. (4 students)

BUENOS AIRES PROJECT CENTER

A humanistic Study Abroad that I designed in 2010, this is a one-unit program that focuses exclusively on language and culture. I personally have advised a total of 4 cohorts; a fifth cohort went with Prof. John Galante in 2019 and a six with Prof. Lina Muñoz in 2022, though I continue in my capacity as Center Director. Students attend language classes and participate in cultural excursions that WPI faculty lead within the city of Buenos Aires. Students take three weekend trips within the region (Uruguay, the Pampas, and Iguazú Falls) and complete a 20-page paper in Spanish upon returning to the States. The titles (translated to English) from projects I advised can be seen below.
